Figure 14: The baseline model incorrectly changes thwart criminals and others contributing to nigeria's instability to destabilize nigeria's economy – which has a mostly opposite meaning. It also produces a nonsensical sentence. Note that our final model produces the novel word says to paraphrase told cnn 's christiane amanpour.

Figure 15: The baseline model fabricates a completely false detail about a u.n. peacekeeping force that is not mentioned in the article. This is most likely inspired by a connection between U.N. peacekeeping forces and northern sinai in the training data. The pointer-generator model is more accurate, correctly reporting the reshuffle of several senior military positions.
